You can help protect government's IT environment.

Learn about how to recognize social engineering.

Lock your computer each time you step away by clicking ⊞ and L.

Clean up your work area of any government information.

Always shred sensitive information.

Use separate passwords for everything, and keep them to yourself.

Use caution when accessing email in a public place — someone could be reading over your shoulder.

If someone calls claiming to be a Government of Saskatchewan employee or other authority figure and asks you for government information, verify their identity first.
